What do you do at "Tender Memento"?

Lee: I work as a story maker. I gather conversations. I weave them with photographs and videos with other volunteers to create a unique story for each patient that we are working with.

What is the most memorable story that you weaved together?

Lee: We had an event called "art in the park". A 3-year old girl painted the painting shown here. We named it "Friend trees". After the girl finished painting this, she told her mother, "Mommy, these trees are friends. The black tree in the middle is holding hands of the other trees and the brown tree is happy." her mother asked her what the green line right of the green tree was. And the girl said, "it is the wind."

I think that is just so precious how she was able to draw what we cannot see with our naked eyes. I love capturing those moments.
